African Multidisciplinary Tax Journal: The African Multidisciplinary Tax Journal (AMTJ) is an annual, applied scientific journal that is double-blind peer-reviewed. The journal publishes original high-quality research papers that use analytical, empirical and contemporary methods across the whole spectrum of taxation research. It is an initiative of the African Tax Administration Forum (ATAF), an international organisation that acts as a platform for promoting co-operation, knowledge sharing and capacity building among African revenue administrations (RAs) thereby reducing duplication of work. From its inception in 2009, when it was formally launched in Kampala, Uganda, ATAF has grown in stature and in influence. Today, ATAF is an important voice in taxation globally with its membership at 40 African tax administrations.

African Yearbook on International Humanitarian Law: The African Yearbook on International Humanitarian Law (AYIHL) is an annual legal journal which aims to promote interest and research in International Humanitarian Law and Policy. The AYIHL provides an attractive and positive forum for publications on all aspects of International Humanitarian Law of relevance to Africa and African academics. Through its encouragement of interest and research in the area, the publication contributes to the prevention of violations of international humanitarian law.

Business Tax and Company Law Quarterly: A quarterly journal that provides invaluable, practical and highly accessible opinions on relevant issues pertaining to tax in the business environment and to company law, particularly as it impacts the conduct of business in SA. The journal is edited by three of South Africa's leading tax and corporate consultants.

Acta Juridica: This annual thematic journal is published with the Faculty of Law of the University of Cape Town. Every year a current legal issue forms the focus. Recent decades have witnessed an increased role for civil society in international law making and the development of international institutions. The design, legal framework and establishment of the International Criminal Court is a key example of this trend. Yet, once international institutions are established, there are few opportunities and mechanisms for civil society to participate directly within the formal proceedings of such institutions, with participation largely limited to states. Nevertheless, civil society groups in Africa are seeking to utilise international and domestic legal frameworks to pursue justice for international crimes committed around the continent and the globe. Indeed, civil society organisations are already playing a key role in domestic international criminal justice procedures in several African countries, with South Africa being a prominent example, as well as before international criminal tribunals, including the International Criminal Court.

Constitutional Court Review: The Constitutional Court Review (CCR) is an international journal of record that tracks the work of the Constitutional Court of South Africa. The long essays, replies, articles and case comments use recent decisions to navigate more general currents in the Court's jurisprudence. The Journal follows a strict double-blind, peer-reviewed editorial process. The CCR invites contributions from outstanding scholars but also considers unsolicited submissions that fit with the aims and scope of the Journal. It is published annually. Articles are published Open Access under a Creative Commons Attribution Licence (CC BY).

De Jure: De Jure is a general law journal, accredited by the Department of Higher Education & Training. It publishes original research concerned with the development and dissemination of cutting-edge legal research, both national and international. The scope of the journal is wide and supports legal academics, practitioners and scholars.

Fundamina : A Journal of Legal History: Fundamina is published biannually as the mouthpiece of the Southern African Society of Legal Historians and articles presented for publication are peer-reviewed by national and international subject specialists.

Journal of Ocean Governance in Africa (Journal of Ocean Law and Governance in Africa): The Journal of Ocean Governance in Africa is a blind peer reviewed Journal of note, under the editorship of the South African Research Chair in the Law of the Sea and Development in Africa. In 2020, it was decided to rename the publication the Journal of Ocean Governance in Africa in order to remove any suggestion that the Journal might focus primarily on ocean law by removing the word 'law' from the previous title of the Journal (The Journal of Ocean Law and Governance in Africa). The disciplinary and geographical width of the editorial team has also been broadened. The vision of the journal is to encourage and support the fast-growing pool of emerging African ocean-governance scholars in publishing excellent research outputs on a scientific and policy platform with which they are as comfortable as possible

Journal of Comparative Law in Africa: The Journal of Comparative Law in Africa is a peer-reviewed academic legal journal published bi-annually by Juta and the Centre for Comparative Law in Africa, at the University of Cape Town (South Africa). The Journal is bilingual (English and French) and addresses legal issues on the African continent.

Journal for Estate Planning Law: The Journal for Estate Planning Law is published by the Faculty of Law, University of the Free State and deals with articles relating to all aspect.

Journal of Corporate and Commercial Law and Practice: The Journal of Corporate and Commercial Law & Practice (JCCLP) is a bi-annual periodical published by Juta for the University of Witwatersrand Law School. This journal covers the area of corporate and commercial law, with specific emphasis on how constitutional law, foreign law and public policy imperatives help improve and develop corporate and commercial law principles. The JCCLP is supported by an eminent editorial committee and editorial advisory board of thought leaders in academics and practice.

Lesotho Law Journal: The Lesotho LJ is a Law and Development journal, published under the auspices of Faculty of Law, National University of Lesotho. The journal is predominantly legal in nature, but we do accept articles from other disciplines provided they are development oriented and take a multidisciplinary approach to law.

South African law reports and journals

Malawi Law Journal: The MLJ is a peer reviewed academic journal that publishes cutting edge, original and previously unpublished work. It accepts articles that explore the interface, tension and congruence between law, human rights, democracy, and development in Malawi and other African countries. Articles of a comparative nature, which are locally relevant, and those dealing with current legal issues of regional importance are also considered.

SA Crime Quarterly: The SA Crime Quarterly, published by the Institute for Security Studies, provides concise analysis of developments in crime trends, and the state's response. The SA Crime Quarterly has replaced the Nedbank Crime Index.

South African Journal of Bioethics and Law: The South African Journal of Bioethics and Law is a bi-annual journal for health professionals dealing with bioethics, law, human rights and related topics.

South African Journal of Labour Relations: Apart from articles of an academic nature which are research based, the journal will publish commentaries, analyses, overviews, case studies, survey results and reports on aspects related to employment relations (in the broadest sense) in South and southern Africa in particular — as well as any relevant international issues in terms of current ideas, theory-building and developments in practice. While interested authors from any country are invited to submit their work for possible publication, Africa-related themes are especially encouraged in the context of the dire need to develop indigenous theory and understanding of people management in the African context.

South African Human Rights Yearbook: The Centre for Socio-Legal Studies publishes this annual reference book and the Media & Publishing Unit produces, markets and distributes the publication. This review of legal and related developments in specific areas of human rights was first published in 1990. The publication documents the legal, social and political implications of the transition to democracy and the deregulation of apartheid. It details changes in legislation, key legal precedents, and findings of commissions. The yearbook covers developments in the areas of: capital punishment; children's rights; conscription; constitutional developments; detention; education; elections; environment; health; homelands; land; legal representation; local government; policing; prisoners' rights; sexual orientation; and women's rights.

SA Mercantile Law Journal: The South African Mercantile Law Journal is a specialist journal published by Juta and the Faculty of Law, University of South Africa. It is devoted to publishing material in the field of mercantile and business law. This journal is not intended as a businessman's journal. It is aimed at practitioners and academics in these areas of the law

South African Intellectual Property Law Journal: The South African Intellectual Property Law Journal (IPLJ) strives to be the journal of choice for academics, practitioners and students of IP law. The IPLJ includes articles on recent developments in legislation, policy and case law keep IP practitioners at the forefront of the law.

Southern African Public Law: SAPL aims to provide academics and intellectuals from Southern Africa and Africa in general a forum for discursive deliberation and debate on matters relating to public law. The journal welcomes contributions dealing with topics in constitutional and administrative law, legal philosophy, legal and constitutional theory, law and government law and closely related fields. The journal encourages a multi-, inter-, and transdisciplinary approach to these various facets of public law. The journal also welcomes book reviews on topical subjects in the field of public law.

South African Law Journal: The South African Law Journal is South Africa's premier law journal. It publishes articles, notes on cases and book reviews by prominent members of the legal profession and academics. Founded in 1884, it is the oldest law journal of its kind in the world. The South African Law Journal is the legal showcase for new ideas, changing attitudes and shifting emphases in South African law. Those who are interested in these changes and developments will find this journal stimulating reading

South African Journal of Criminal Justice: This publication provides an arena for discussion of issues affecting the criminal justice system. The journal focuses on criminal law, criminal procedure, evidence, international criminal law and criminology. International scholars in criminal justice are represented on the editorial panel.

Stellenbosch Law Review: The Stellenbosch Law Review is a forum for the discussion of topical legal issues in various fields. As a law review, the emphasis is on providing insight rather than just an overview. It maintains a balance between a wide variety of specialist fields and legal subjects of general interest.

Yearbook of South African Law: The Yearbook of South African Law is an annual publication that aims to provide the legal fraternity – academics, students and practitioners – with an overview of developments in various areas of the law for a twelve-month period. A review period runs from 1 July of a particular year to 30 June of the following year.

Transactions of the Centre for Business Law: Transactions of the Centre for Business Law is devoted to eminent, refereed, jurisprudential monographs, papers and other contributions, too extensive for publication in law review journals and emanating from postgraduate research (preferably on masters, doctoral or post-doctoral level) in the field of mercantile, commercial or business law.
